New! How to Live Mindfully

Do you feel stressed out? Overwhelmed? Always running on autopilot? Are you particularly hard on yourself or others? When we learn how to live mindfully, instead of seeing life through a muted, busy lens, we see it more vibrantly and clearly. We worry less about the past and future and begin to appreciate the here and now. Living mindfully can improve overall health and well-being. Mindfulness is a science and researched based practice in which you can shape your mind, just as you do your body with exercise. Come see how you can feel more engaged in life and be happier when you learn "How to Live Mindfully".

New! The Legacy of Woodrow Wilson: Good and Bad

Although born and raised in the South, much of his academic and political career was spent in New Jersey. He served as a professor and as President of Princeton University, and he was elected Governor of New Jersey in 2010. In 1912 he was elected to serve as the 28th president of the United States. He served two full terms as US President. Historians generally recognize Wilson as one of our greatest Presidents, in terms of domestic reforms and global leadership. Recently some Princeton University students have challenged Wilson's legacy and recognition on campus, primarily due to his record on matters of Race. This two hour lecture will re-examine both sides of this question and you can decide for yourself.
