FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE #71 November 26, 2012

JOHN WATERS TO PRESENT ONE-MAN CHRISTMAS SHOW AT RVCC THEATRE

Filmmaker/entertainer John Waters (Hairspray, Pink Flamingos, A Dirty Shame) will present an unforgettable night of holiday mischief in A John Waters Christmas, Sunday, December 9, at 7 p.m., at the Theatre at Raritan Valley Community College in Branchburg. The critically acclaimed, one-man show is part of the Theatre’s Major Artists series. Tickets cost $30 and $40.

Waters pokes fun at the holiday season with adult-appropriate humor, effectively putting the X in X-mas, in a show for the open minded and slightly left-of-center audience. The Baltimore-born filmmaker began his Hollywood success with the now Broadway classic, Hairspray, in 1988. Claiming his playful nicknames Pope of Trash and Prince of Puke, he maintains his image through his filmmaking and his personal presentation. Regarded as a shocking entertainer, Waters carefully chooses his material and exploits it through a dirty lens. His rapid-fire monologue explores and explodes the holiday rituals and traditions as he shares his religious fanaticism for Santa Claus and an unhealthy love of real-life holiday horror stories.

To purchase tickets or for additional information, contact the Box Office, 908-725-3420, or order online at www.rvccArts.org. Senior citizen, student and group discounts are also available for a variety of performances.
